Tier-on-tier

What are they?

Two sets of panels, one on top of the other that operate independently of each other.

Pros Extremely versatile, giving excellent privacy and light control.

Cons Not suitable for all windows as they can look too busy.

Best for Bedrooms, bathrooms and dining rooms.

Cafe style

What are they?

Panels that cover only part of the window.

Pros Cheaper than full shutters and let in more light. Gives a lovely Continental feel.

Cons Less draught proofing - more a decorative feature than practical.

Best for Rooms that are not overlooked.

Full height

What are they?

Our most popular option, single full height panels cover the whole window. Quite often full height shutters will have a divider rail so you can operate the slats above and below it independently to control the light according to your needs.

Pros Great insulation, privacy and noise control.

Cons There aren't any!

Best for French or patio doors and tall windows but are sufficiently flexible to be adapted to any window.

Tracked

What are they?

Rather than fitting shutters in the usual manner with frames and hinges, these shutters slide in a track. They concertina back.

Pros Give easy access through a patio or bi-fold door and can be pulled right back to make the most of a view.

Cons Not suitable for a window with a sill.

Solid

What are they?

Solid wood panels that cover the window entirely.

Pros Very insulating and give a traditional cosy look.

Cons Less flexible - they're either open or closed.

Best for Bedrooms, draughty period properties.

Shaped shutters

What are they?

Bespoke panels to fit unusual and awkward shaped windows.

Pros Make the most of unusual architecture. Give clean and interesting alternative to curtains or blinds.

Cons Can be more expensive.

Best for Any unusual shaped window.

To the right of the window is a wooden vanity with drawers and a white sink. The walls are light-colored, and the floor is made of light-colored wood planks.
